FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Cambridge, MA – The Harvard Catholic Center (HCC) has launched a new website for students, and for all members of its community, to coincide with the start of the 2017-2018 academic year at Harvard University. Undergraduate and graduate students will be able to easily find important liturgical and sacramental information as well as faith-based activities, programs, and events. The site will offer abundant resources for ‘worship, inquiry, prayer, and service’ which are the four pillars of the Center’s mission, and will serve the nearly 20% of the Harvard student population that self-identifies as Catholic. The new website, powered by eCatholic, will function as the virtual center of Catholic life at Harvard. Rev. Mark Murphy, Harvard chaplain to the undergraduate students of Harvard College was particularly enthusiastic about the new site. “On behalf of all the chaplains at the Harvard Catholic Center, we are thrilled that our website not only has a new, refreshed look but that it will be far more sophisticated in serving the needs of all Harvard Catholics. Everyone is excited about the new site, and we are blessed to finally share it,” offered Fr. Murphy. The HCC invites students, alumni, parents, donors, staff, volunteers, and all members of its community to visit www.harvardcatholic.org often and, better still, come by the Center at 29 Mount Auburn Street in Harvard Square, adjacent to St. Paul’s Church. Blessings!
